

Dr. Sandy Husk is an experienced education leader with a proven record of improving student performance and opportunities while empowering educational teams.

Superintendent Advisor College Board, National Education Research and Development Institute, National School Public Relations Association: served as its Superintendent Advisor for 3 years (2008-2010); American Association of School Administrators; Association of Suburban School Superintendents; Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development; National Staff Development Council; Horace Mann League.

Dr. Husk lives in Sisters, Oregon, with her husband, Charles Hinson, and, in her non-work hours can be found hiking, biking, reading, traveling, and spending time with friends and family.

-----